Ah, the first show of Fashion Week. I saw FORM at last year's Gen Art show, and although I liked the 2007 collection, I think Jerry Tam did a better job of balancing his complex geometric designs with the natural female form in this spring 2008 collection.

The lines have softened and fall more naturally over the body, while still retaining the structural complexity that made FORM's work interesting in the first place. You can find FORM at Oak in Williamsburg and Park Slope.
