Form

With so many young designers on a dress kick, it's refreshing to discover a newcomer who can cut a pantsuit. Meet Jerry Tam, the twentysomething behind Form's double-lapel jackets, trim tapered pants, and sleek trench—all of which are finished with couture-like attention to detail. After stints at Imitation of Christ, Perry Ellis, and Zac Posen, Tam knows his way around a bolt of chiffon, too; his spring debut included plenty of floaty, princess-seam dresses.

Available at Form Studio, NYC, (646) 216-9194.
